Rosen Real Readers: Social Studies adhere to Rosen Classroom's mission to provide quality, content-rich leveled readers for every classroom. These innovative fiction and nonfiction collections address the current English language arts and social studies needs of today's educators and learners. The books provide rigorous, standards-aligned social studies content within an easy-to-use, leveled reading program while also addressing and celebrating the diversity of the modern American student body. The collections encompass all fundamental disciplines within social studies, including titles spanning Guided Reading Levels (GRL) A-H. The texts give students from kindergarten through third grade a solid start to becoming engaged, 21st-century citizens.

The titles in Rosen Real Readers: Social Studies, such as A River Runs Through This Valley (GRL B), Children Have Basic Rights (GRL D), Constitution Day (GRL B), and We Buy Vegetables from Mr. Owens (GRL B), explore the core disciplines of social studies, geography, civics, history, and economics through an accessible lens. Other titles like My Dad Takes a Train to Work (GRL A) and My Mother Was Born in Mexico (GRL A) take it a step further by ensuring a range of American experiences are explored. Through both fiction and nonfiction texts, children are given the opportunity to experience stories to which they can directly relate.

For the exploration of paired fiction and nonfiction titles, instructors may:

- use one of the titles in a text pair to introduce the concept through whole class instruction (using instruction suggestions at the back of the book if desired), and the second title to reinforce learning through small group guided reading instruction;
- promote discussion by having students compare texts and explain how concepts were explored in each;
- differentiate instruction for advanced learners by allowing independent exploration of the second text;
- differentiate for struggling readers by allowing one-on-one instruction with the second text; and
- apply a cyclical approach to reinforce learning, circling back to previously studied concepts by introducing the second text later on.

By weaving social studies content into diverse and relatable fiction and nonfiction narratives and offering varied opportunities for instructional use, Rosen Real Readers: Social Studies has developed a reputation of being a remarkable resource for helping educators meet their classroom needs.

Social Studies Fiction Collection 1 (Levels C-H)

GRADES 2-3 (C-H)

She shows Joey the cockpit.
Then, he sits with his dad.

This is Joey's first time flying.
He wants to be in the clouds.

Paired nonfiction title counterpart appears on page 11 in the same order and position as it does on this page.

First, they buy a fruit tree. Fruit trees clean the air and grow food. Trees grow slowly. This tree is young. It needs time to grow. It needs to be cared for.

Tony's mom starts to dig. The hole needs to be deep enough for the roots to fit. When the hole is ready, Tony places the tree inside.
