INTERACTIVE LESSONS

In Notysing you learn to sing from written music in interactive lessons. Along the way you will pick up knowledge in note names, scales, keys, rhythm, music theory and much more.

BY EDUCATORS AND RESEARCHERS

Notysing is developed by music teachers and researchers in an ongoing research project involving The Royal College of Music in Stockholm and Doremir Music Research.

FOR EVERYONE

The app has been tested in music education with junior high and high school students and teachers, but can be used by anyone who can read, regardless of age or music knowledge.

This is just fantastic!

Music teacher, grades 7-9

The app is a great tool to learn notation, so that the students can practice at home

I want to try this with all my 7-9 students

It is fun and good they made an app to teach you notes, rhythm etc.

It recognized my voice so well, and was fun to understand, and after Level 1 you had already sung a song. That makes you motivated!

Pedagogical Model

The pedagogical model, created together with the Royal College of Music in Stockholm, starts with note names ("C D E"), and proceeds to use scale degree numbers ("1 2 3"). This was worked out to be the easiest way to understand scales without having to learn specific new vocabulary, and instead focus on the singing. The app then teaches key signatures and rhythm, enabling the user to sing real songs from notation!

Upcoming lessons will move on to teach solfège ("Do Re Mi"), but with scale degree numbers being very intuitive, the app can already be used in parallel to solfège-based learning.

Dashboard for Educators

Music teachers, choir and band leaders: you can use Notysing with your students and track their progress through the Notysing Dashboard.

Notysing performs best as a complement to teacher-led music education. With Notysing, your students can meet the goals of the curriculum regarding music literacy, music notation and the understanding of how music can be represented and organized. Each student has their own development path so you can give relevant feedback and get a basis for assessment.
