

Urban Forestry and Mountain Forestry

Trees need people, and people need trees – especially in urban areas. TreePeople plants trees on streets throughout the city, at schools and in parks in order to provide shade and to combat rising heat temperatures.

And the mountains are the lungs of our city! They are vital for our air and water quality, biodiversity and recreation. But fires, drought and pests have left our wildlands needing TreePeople's help to restore our forests and fragile ecosystems.

Visit our online events page to learn more about upcoming volunteer opportunities and how to become a Citizen Forester or as an Urban Planting or Wildlands Restoration Supervisor.

Tree Dedications

Give the gift that goes straight to the heart. Give trees.

Celebrate and honor loved ones during meaningful life events, including weddings, births, anniversaries, graduations and memorials with a dedication that will plant and care for trees.

Thousands of trees thrive throughout LA's city parks, neighborhoods, schools and our mountain forests because of donations to our Tree Dedication Program.

Plant the seeds of change. Dedicate a tree today!

Coldwater Canyon Park

Nestled on a hilltop in the center of LA County lies TreePeople's home, Coldwater Canyon Park. With 45 acres, hikers, dog-walkers and cyclists are invited to visit and explore our miles of trails; or join one of our family, moonlight and pet-friendly hikes.

Join Friends of Coldwater Canyon Park to receive perks like free performance tickets, tree dedications and invites to special park events. Visit TreePeople.org/fccp for details.

Park is open daily 6:30 AM to sunset.

Volunteer

YOU can make a difference today – join our team of volunteers!

We have a vision of a climate-ready LA. To get there, we rely on volunteers to help transform our region into a healthy urban ecosystem – one community at a time.

Volunteering with TreePeople is fun and rewarding. Unlike volunteer typical experiences, we empower YOU with the support, training and tools you need to be an engine of change. Volunteers help to plant and care for native plants and trees while restoring our urban and mountain forests. Events typically take place on Saturdays and Sundays throughout LA and surrounding communities.

No previous training needed and all ages are welcome.

School Programs

When schools involve young students in a quality eco-friendly education, everyone wins.

TreePeople's Environmental Education programs, which introduce young people to the natural world that's right outside their doorsteps, span grades K-12. Using the environment as a lens, students learn about science, conservation and how they can play a major role in improving the urban forest. In addition to offering fun field trips at Coldwater Canyon Park, the programs support service learning for teachers and provide helpful project toolkits for Eco Clubs throughout the LA region.
